FROM THE RABBI by Rabbi Steven Conn

As children, my brother and sister and I were fascinated by the "magic trick" of pulling the tablecloth out from under a fully set table. We saw the trick performed many times on television. After a while we became so curious that we decided to try the trick ourselves. I am not sure which one of us actually pulled on the tablecloth. But suffice it to say, we all got in trouble over the mess that resulted.

It turns out that the time honored trick of pulling the tablecloth out from under a fully set table plays a small role in the development of the Passover Haggadah.

The rabbis wanted to make sure that participants in the seder asked questions throughout the night. Therefore, they made a rule that the seder meal could not proceed until someone had asked a question. In the early days, some rabbis went to great lengths to ensure that there would be questions at the seder. In the Talmud, the great teacher Abbaye tells the story that his teacher Rabba had his servants literally "upend the table" before the seder meal had even begun. While most commentators suggest that the servants merely cleared the table of dishes, the verb the Talmud uses suggests a quicker and more dramatic action. In my imagination, the only gesture that would warrant use of such a powerful verb would have been to actually pull out the tablecloth from under the table settings. If Rabba really wanted to provoke questions at the seder table, nothing would have worked better than the old pull out the table cloth from under the set table trick.

As time went on, the seder became routine enough that the rabbis mandated four specific questions to be asked at the beginning of the seder. These questions became known as the Mah Nishtanah. The recitation of the Mah Nishtanah, usually by the youngest child, ensured that there would always be at least four questions at the seder.

If there were ever a year where we did not need the four questions, it is 5780–2020 on our secular calendars. This year, our seders will not be routine. Our lives have been upended by the rapid spread of the dangerous Coronavrius COVID-19. We will not be congregating in the synagogue for our typically large community seders. We will not be gathering with extended families and friends in our houses. We will be having our seders alone, or with just a few other people. For the first time, some of us will be connecting to our seders remotely, using the internet to join with our loved ones or members of our community who are isolated in their own homes. For many of us, our Passover preparations will have been rushed and perhaps not as meticulous as usual. We may not have been able to get all the Passover foods we are used to having. And we will be unsure of what the future will bring in a way that we may have never been in our lives. We will not have to rely on the Haggadah as a source for questions. The very act of celebrating a seder under these unusual and stressful circumstances will raise enough questions on its own.

For the rabbis, questions are the gateway to learning. The more questions we ask, the more we understand. For us too, there may be something to be learned from all the questions we are asking this year. Perhaps we will gain a new perspective on our lives and how much we have taken for granted.

Perhaps we will develop a greater appreciation of the strength we draw from our families and our communities. Perhaps we will come to understand better just how important Judaism is as a source of values, identity and spirituality. But right now, it is hard to look at our questions as anything other than a source of anxiety and a measuring stick for just how much our lives have been turned upside down. If there is any antidote to all of our questions, it is not learning. Learning is good, but no one wants to learn the hard way. The only antidote to our questions right now, our tradition teaches us, is hope, Not faith, but hope. Faith is the naive certainty that God will miraculously save us from whatever dangers we face. But hope is the knowledge that whatever happens, we cannot afford to give in to despair. We must remain open to the possibility that things will get better, and do what we can to move things in the right direction.

The Israelites in the Passover story maintained their hope for redemption, even after many generations of slavery. Our ancestors opened the door for Elijah every year during the Passover seder to express their hope that redemption would come to our people even when they themselves faced persecution and oppression. Hope has gotten us through the most difficult times as a people. Hope is one of the most powerful tools we have at our disposal during the difficult time that we find ourselves in today. Let us dedicate our Passover seders this year to fortifying our souls with hope and making sure we keep our vision of a better future in sight. In the words of the Psalmist "Hope in Adonai, be strong and take good courage, hope in Adonai."

A NOTE FROM THE PRESIDENT by MICHAEL PORTNOY

When everything comes to a halt, literally, there are certain main components and issues that need immediate attention. For example, if we suddenly are faced with the death of a loved one, everything else stops. Our main concern then becomes the departed and all that has to be done at that point. Sadly, our daily lives seem as if we are dealing with a similar type of halt. My heart goes out to those who have the illness or have lost a loved one during this time.

This virus, or shall I say plague, has hit our world recently. COVID-19 is just that, a plague! Whether some are able to withstand its force or not so much for others, we are living what our ancestors dealt with. Ironically, it has come during Passover.

At Plainview Jewish Center, it has been quite the experience. Without a warning, who knew we could have this type of an issue and challenges? I must say that decisions had to be made and are still being made without time to waste. We thoroughly cleaned up our building and stopped all traffic through it. Sadly, for the Men's Club, and the rest of us, the show came to an abrupt halt leaving everyone in total dismay. "Is it that bad?" many were texting me, calling me, face timing me. Add to that, family, friends, clients and even my grandkids and my children questioned me to the point where I felt, and am still feeling, overwhelmed. Decisions had to be made. I conferred with Board members. Our decisions disappointed some and made others more comfortable. Please believe me, it hasn't been easy. If not for our Leadership and our Rabbi, things wouldn't be going so smoothly. I cannot even begin to mention names right now but please know that all those that have helped so much in an effort to keep things going are truly appreciated. Those in the Hebrew School, on he Ritual Committeef, on the Board, from the bottom of my heart, Thank you!

We are moving forward and are on "top of things," including our finances. Please rest assured and have faith that even though we are not seeing each other on a regular basis and our physical location remains closed, there is plenty of work and care behind the scenes. Let's unite and pray together for the sake of our loved ones, our congregation and the return to normality as we know it.

In the meantime, hopefully, everyone has read the updates in our emails and are following our Facebook page and group on social media. Our website has a link to our Facebook page and if you need assistance in accessing social media, please let us know. Someone will happily walk you through it. Our daily online services are a breath of fresh air! Some of us who were unable to attend our Synagogue on a daily basis, can now be a part of it.

If you look at a group of people that had faith, it's the Jews. We followed Moses through the desert for 40 years without a map. There had to be a guy in the back thinking, I don't think He knows where he's going. Well, here at PJC we know where we are going and my vision is that we will pick up where we left off! With positiveness, health and a newfound appreciation for family, friendship and our Synagogue, we will survive this challenge.

In memory of our beloved congregant, mentor, volunteer and all-around great guy, Joe Elowsky, may your family and friends at PJC remember you with the smiles and love that you always had. We will miss you dearly! Sending my very best wishes to each and everyone of you and please contact me if you need assistance during these trying times.

Michael Portnoy, President

Bom Hashdah Program

Dear Plainview Jewish Center Members:

As you all know, the coronavirus pandemic has had a significant effect on all of our lives. Sadly, it has resulted in the temporary closure of our synagogue and has impacted the ability of the Men's Club to process and send out this year's Yom Hashoah Yellow candles.

The annual lighting of the yellow candles serves to help us remember and pay respects to the six million of us who perished in the Holocaust. Providing the candles is one of the most important functions of our PJC Men's Club and it is unfortunate that we will be unable to do so this year.

Yom Hashoah takes place on April 21st and we will be emailing a prayer which you will be able to recite at home on the evening of April 20th.

Our Men's Club takes great pride in sponsoring this program and hopefully next year we will be able to do so in a more traditional way.

The Vav class had their class service. The students led many parts of the Saturday morning service and everyone in attendance was so proud of their leadership. After the service our students, parents and other congregants enjoyed a light lunch.

Students learned about the ultimately joyous holiday of Purim and the mitzvah of giving mishloach manot (food packages). Pictured below are the Daled and Hay classes with the mishloach manot that they put together. The custom is to give this package to someone you know. Can you guess who these packages went to?

Family Education Corner by Judy Alper

I've decided to keep my article light and positive and meaningful to me. I hope you will find it meaningful as well. In January my husband found out he was going to need a very difficult surgery. (If you're interested he had a "whipple" and you can google it).

We went to all the right doctors, called in favors, got our second opinions and found a doctor of "excellence" at Mount Sinai. We put my husband's Hebrew name on several shul lists and friends paid for different organizations to pray for him. We even brought in the best "night nurse" ...my daughter from Israel who happens to be exactly that, a night nurse in an abdominal surgery ward.

On the day of the surgery, my husband was particularly calm and he commented on it. He said, I've gotten the best doctors and medical care. I'm in a great hospital and everyone I know is praying for me. There's nothing more I can do. It's totally in God's hands. He was right and perhaps that is the first lesson we should all learn, but that's not what this article is about. I will give you the end of the story first...my husband went through the 7 hour surgery successfully and will be, G-d willing, leading our seder soon. But that's also not what this article is about.

A week before my daughter came in, she called us up to prepare him for what would happen when he woke up and she gave me a special assignment. Every day that he was in the hospital I was to bring two packages of treats to give to the nurse. One for the day shift and one for the night shift. I thought she was crazy, Fourteen days in the hospital and two treats a day was easily over $100. Isn't that overkill? I asked her. In a voice that I used to use on her, she said, "No. Nurses do a lot for their patients and most people don't show them any appreciation. Remember, a special treat every day with a note saying thank you from the Alper family in room 120B. They will always do the work well, but it makes a big difference when they are shown some appreciation." She was right, but not in the way I expected.

Off to ShopRite to buy candies, cookies, teas and more; enough to fill a suitcase! As soon as I walked on the floor I dutifully handed the nurse a package of cookies, put on my best smile and said, "we appreciate what you're going to be doing for my husband." I did that every shift for two days. On the third day we were getting ready for Shabbos and I got a nicer treat and started to write out my post it note and instead of a simple thank you, I started to write, "In gratitude for the kindness your showing my husband" ..from the Alper family. At that moment it was no longer my charming them (or bribing them as I sometimes thought), I was really grateful for everything that they were doing for him, watching over him and anticipating his needs before he did. The little box of cookies was a gift to me, it was allowing me to be gracious to them and have a chance to thank them for a gift I could never repay. They did enjoy the gifts, but not as much as the goodness we all felt giving to them.

The nurses on that floor gave everyone wonderful care, but the care my husband got was the best because that little gift gave us the opportunity to show our thankfulness to them. And those notes...they were easier to write each day because I meant every word of every thank you. Thank God he is doing well and we will have a seder for two this year, but it will be a well appreciated one!

That was the second lesson, feeling grateful. Wishing everyone a safe and healthy Passover, one where we can treasure our loved ones and, God willing, look forward to a healthy future.

SISTERHOOD NEWS

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE Rose Weiner & Rhonnie Diener - Co-Presidents

Spring is finally here. We ended winter with our successful Shalach Manot project. We would like to thank the entire Shalach Manot committee for all their hard work in getting the orders, collating them, purchasing all the food, assembling the bags and distributing them to the congregation. Also we wish to thank all the volunteers who came down to help set up and pack all the bags. A big thank you goes to the men from Men's Club who helped so much by shleping and helping to set up. This experience of camaraderie and cooperation makes this event even more special.

Now that Purim is over, we are beginning to prepare for Passover and the Seders. This is the time when families to come together not only for a delicious meal but to pass on our identity and Jewish awareness to the next generation. This year is a major challendge for all of us. With the corona virus in full swing, we must all learn to practice in small, confined circumstances. We will probably not have the joy of celebrating with family and friends. But we can still keep our traditions alive. We can Facetime with family or share the community seders from the temple via Zoom. It may be different, but we will protect our families and neighbors by following the recommended health advice to stay inside and to be fastidious about washing our hands.

During this time we retell the story of our history going from slavery to freedom by reading the Haggadah. The word Haggadah means telling and comes from the Biblical phrase "and you shall tell it to your children." We can also add the contributions from the heroic women from the Haggadah, which helped the Jewish people in their quest for freedom. Also the Seder revolves around the big question Why? During the Seder the children usually ask the 4 questions asking "Why is this night different from all other nights?" The answers have been recited over and over again for centuries to teach it to the next generation and all the following generations. This is part of our history and is about what it means to be Jewish. In this way, we can truly be a free people. As we retell the Passover story, let's make it our own story this year.

Please be well and stay safe,

MEN'S CLUB by Steven Adelman

I'm really not sure where to start with this article. No one could have imagined a month ago all the changes in our lives and the events that would take place. As you all know by now, the third and fourth shows of "Meet Me in St. Louis" and our Purim festivities were canceled due to precautionary measures taken by Plainview Jewish Center. As gutwrenching a decision as it was, to close the show halfway through, it was absolutely the correct decision to make. To all those who had a hand in any part of this year's show and on behalf of the show producers, thank you all so very much for your time, dedication and hours spent away from your families in helping make this year's show the best yet. The sudden end to the show left a sense of uncompleted business, emptiness and disappointment for everyone. This was a very difficult decision, but one that had to be made.

As mentioned in the past, our Men's Club is so dependent on the show's outcome (putting all our eggs in one proverbial basket) that when something happens as it did this year, we have issues. We missed out on two shows' worth of ticket sales along with raffles and concession sales. The upside is that the show was profitable up until we closed.

As you may know, your Executive Board had an Emergency Financial Meeting on March 12th. As the show's future hung in the balance, we reviewed all our expenses until the end of our fiscal year, June 30th. I really need to thank the guys on the Executive Board for that meeting, for attending last minute and making the difficult but correct decisions for the Men's Club. It really makes me proud to be a part of this group. You guys are great. Thank you.

A fax was sent out on March 13th to all Board members outlining the changes, which included adds, cuts or status quo to our actives until year-end. The good news is, our worst case scenario will get us there, just barely. This is based on the assumption that all outstanding monies owed to us will be paid and that is a very critical point. So I ask all those who owe monies for tickets, Playbill ads, Hakol ads and Purim costs to take the time and drop the check in the mail.

As most of you by now know, we are mourning the loss of our dear friend, Joe Elowsky. Joe Elowsky was a past FJMC Man of the Year and was honored last year as receiver of the second Plainview Jewish Center Men's Club Life Time Achievement Award. Joe was a dedicated and very active Men's Club Board member for 40 plus years. He was very active with POB Cares helping the elderly in our community. I've had the pleasure of working alongside Joe for the past 15 years as a Patio Players member, a passion I know he always carried. May Joe's memory be for a blessing.

Personally, can I ask each one of you to please heed the warnings of our government officials in the days and weeks ahead? One life is much too much to lose, we can't bear anymore. PLEASE STAY SAFE!!!

As Always, in Brotherhood, Steven Adelman 516-382-1681

PSSST! IT'S OKAY TO TALK ABOUT OTHER PEOPLE

Respecting others' privacy is an important Jewish value. Lashon HaRa—gossip—is uniformly condemned by our tradition. But there is at least one exception. When someone is ill or in need of care and support, it is a mitzvah to tell people who can help.

In our community, the Rabbi provide pastoral support to individuals and families who are suffering illness and those who need emotional support. The Rabbi also serves as the liaison to our newly formed Bikur Cholim Committee; which provides additional visits and support to those who request it.

Please let the Rabbi know when someone in our congregation is ill; or when a family is dealing with a crisis. Only when they know can they reach out to individuals and families in need. Only when they know can they mobilize our Bikur Cholim committee to provide additional support. Don't worry that they might already have the information. Don't worry that you are "bothering" these busy people. The information you provide will be vital to helping our congregation to serve the needs of those who need us the most.

Rabbi Conn can be reached at PJC at (516) 938-8610.

Rabbi Conn can be reached by cell at (516) 524-7447 or by email at rabbiconn@plainviewjewishcenter.com.

Hatzilu Means Rescue

Hatzilu is reaching out to our community for help. This worthy organization has been assisting impoverished and needy Jews throughout Nassau County for many years. Volunteer social workers help elderly Jews obtain the government benefits to which they are entitled and food is provided to the hungry. Hatzilu maintains the largest kosher food warehouse in Nassau County and volunteers deliver food to people who need it desperately. The warehouse is in dire need of canned goods and nonperishable foods. Donations of these products would help restock the shelves that are almost bare.

Hatzilu appreciates all money donations as well. A food collection box will be placed by the main entrance of the synagogue.

Thanks for helping those in need. For further information about Hatzilu, please go to: www.hatzilurescue.org or call 931-2884.
